A PUBLIC CEMETERY.

We are glad to see that this subject is to occupy the attention of our Town Fathers again. Let us hope that some scheme may be hit upon which will be successful.

BOOK NOTICES.

"NIGHTSHADE," by Wm. Johnson M. A.

A copy of this Book has been received. It is one of those works which vividly portrays the workings of Jesuitism in Protestant England, and its effect upon the social system of every country. After a careful perusal we cordially agree with the opinion of the Rev. George "Griffiths, who in noticing the work says:—"We recommend it and we do so in union with a large proportion of the Press and the public—as a manly, earnest, and faithful exposition of that dark system of Popery, so called Jesuitism; an arm which the rather requires exposition as it winds on in secret, and with tortuous flexures of most inscrutable kind. We believe that Mr. Johnson so far from exaggerating, has rather understated the 'terre tres tale' which it has been his task to unfold. Artistically, too, the Book is very superior; vigorous in its style, interesting in its plot, and singularly bold and definite in its purpose."

"DENDAS, OR A SKETCH OF CANADIAN HISTORY," by JAMES CROIL, of Williamsburgh, C. W. Four Layers, Esq. Montreal, publisher, 232 pages, $1. H. WALKER, Stationer Belleville.

We are indebted to the Author for a copy of this work. From a hasty glance at its pages we have no doubt but that it will prove a valuable addition to any one's library. The work contains a concise sketch of the discovery of America—of the first settlements by the English and French in the United States, Nova Scotia, and Canada; the origin and results of the French War, the War of Independence, the War of 1812, and the Rebellion in Canada; with full details of the battle of Cryder's Farm, and of the Windmill, and the subsequent Union of the Provinces. A particular account of the first settlement of the County of Dundas, its progress and present aspect, together with much useful information respecting the representation of the Province, and the Educational, Legal, and Municipal Institutions of Canada, will also be found in its pages. It embraces besides, notes on Geology, Natural History, and Meteorology, farming, and drainage—some particulars regarding the first Parliament Church in Canada, not generally known—information relative to public works—River and Ocean Steamers—anecdotes and biographical sketches illustrative of the early settlement of the old Eastern District of Upper Canada—and an account of the visit of the Prince of Wales to Canada in 1860.

Alberta clever perusal of the work we shall return to the subject.

"BLACKWOOD'S MAGAZINE," Leonard Scott & Co. Publishers, 79 Fulton Street, New York.

The number before us, of this justly popular monthly contains the following papers:—

Hook's Archbishops of Canterbury.
Judicial Puzzler.—Spencer Cowper's Case.
The Farewell of the Seal.
Norman Sinclair: An Autobiography.
—Part XVII.
The Book-Hunter again.
The Orleans Marvissee.
The Barbarism of Civilization.
The Demise of the Indian Army.
The Epic of the Budget
The Disruption of the Union.

The last paper is an able treatise upon the state of affairs in the United States, in which an opinion is expressed that the Union is at an end, and winds up with the hope that "however the dispute may be settled, we trust sincerely that the career of both may be so prosperous as to leave them no reason to regret the disruption of the Union."

WESTMINSTER REVIEW.—The Westminster for July has been received. It contains articles on the Life and Letters of Schleirmacher—the Salmon Fisheries of England and Wales—the Critical Theories and Writings of H. Taine—Mr. Millen Representative Government—The Countess of Albany —Equatorial Africa and its Explorers—Mr. Buckle's History of Civilization in England —Christian Creeds and their Defenders—and Contemporary Literature. Sen adversement.

"THE BRITISH AMERICAN JOURNAL, devoted to the advancement of the Medical and Physical Sciences in the British American Provinces." Edited by ARCHIBALD HALL, M. D. C. S. E. &c. Montreal, Lovell, St. Nicholas street, Montreal. Only $2 per annum.

The July number of this work contains some highly interesting treatises upon various diseases which affect the human race, and a highly interesting critique upon the late trial and conviction of a man by the name of Patterson, an unlicensed practitioner, for having effected an abortion. A crime, for which he has been condemned to the gallows. Let us hope this will tend to drive from the country, the great number of quacks who infest society in every part of the Province. No Medical man should be without this Monthly.

Correspondence.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

SIR,—Did it ever strike you that the old Reform party of the County of Hastings, has recovered from the hands of the Press, that part of it, I mean, which is prepared to express its views—bad treatment, and been sold and bartered away like sheep in a market. What an opposition Tormentor we had a paper to which we looked with some degree of confidence, as the exponent of views which we as a party held in common; but one unlucky issue of that paper taught us that we had Judasses in our midst, ready for a few pieces of silver to barter away our franchise. Till then we looked upon the Hastings Chronicle as our sheet anchor, ready at any moment to prevent the ship from being upon the shoals of party division. Experience, however, has taught us that we cannot trust any of them; that, in fact, the first breath that taints the atmosphere with promises of reward, party fidelity is gone, and we find those who were supposed to think as we do, caught by the gentle murmurings of the zephyrs, who whisper in their ears—money. This may appear rather harsh, but look for a moment at the position of the old Reform party (once powerful) in this County, and what do we find?

In 1857, when Lewis Wallbridge found it necessary to make professions in opposition to the opinions he had held during his whole life, in order to catch Reform votes, the Chronicle cheered on old Reformer until it supported him (Wallbridge), designating those who would not be led by it as the fag end of the old Radical party. Not to be without an organ, steps were taken to bring into life another paper. This was accomplished. It had not been long in existence when confusion whispered with bated breath it was to unite with the Chronicle, and a genuine Ministerial sheet was to appear. This was appointed by the Wallbridge party, and security given to defend the Chronicle against all harm. Here again money was at the bottom of the scheming. Notwithstanding this, a partnership was entered into between the Chronicle and Independent to divide the income of the offices, but one was to be Opposition and the other Ministerial. Thus things progressed, the Independent drawing its sustenance from the old Reform party and from Ministerial sources, and dividing it with the Chronicle, whose support was gathered in from the Clear Grit and Opposition ranks, which in return was divided with the Independent. Judges and Bench. A party well laid scheme to bring the fish of the whole stream into the one net. It did not end here, a grand consolidation was demanded from the Independent, and lo, on the eve of the last election this paper was found free from being the mindless opponent of Mr. Wallbridge, his firm friend and advocate. This sudden summersault again threw the party into confusion, and upon inquiry being made as to the cause, it was soon found in the declaration of the party most interested, made in the public street, that in consideration of what he had done, he had ample security for better support, than it was not principle or Reformism that suggested the change, but interest. Truly, money is the rest of all evil. At the election in 1857 it was necessary to effect a division among the Reformers, and Wallbridge's money secured the Chronicle. In 1861 it was necessary to unite the then divided Reformers who still held together, and Wallbridge's money secured the Independent. This has not been a party to unite, but to divide, and consequently to conquer, until it is powerless. Is it possible that the whole mass of the country is thus demoralized? Is there no spirit left in Belleville is concerned, the Radical press is, and yet with all this in the mouth of every man, these same journals are constantly fawning and talking about corruption, the mention of which word should sink in their very souls, as it is that theme upon which has selected every grave and turn that they have made. Where will this end? Is money to buy the whole? Are we as a party to be completely ignored? Are we to support? I cannot believe it. Retribution will follow, and that soon.

HARRISON, July 29th, 1861.

SIR,—In the Intelligencer of the 26th inst. "Pater-familias" in giving an account of the late examination of the Stirling Grammar and Common Schools, makes this statement concerning the latter:—" This School numbering over 120 pupils, now occupies the position of 'best Common School in the North Riding of the County of Hastings,'" by placing in quotation marks the sentence beginning—but Common.

Making every allowance for the fond feelings of paternal affection, which fails to di cover any defect in his own children, and views, through this rose-tinted medium, the school of which they form a part; still we cannot see why this sapping Latinist should place in quotation marks the myth of his own fancy; and then try to palm off on his readers, sentiments and sentences that are figments of his own brain as proceeding from any source from which we feel assured they never came. Will Pater please give the name of the author, from whom he makes such able quotations?

We have no reference to the examination of the Grammar School, nor to the relative of the Common School, when we know of to be a well informed person, but simply to give that statement "best Common School in the North Riding of the County of Hastings," a flat denial, it does not exist.

Let Pater-familias look in Anthon's Ainsworth for a definition of his assumed name, and see how he has exposed himself.

RAMBLINGS IN IRELAND.

On the road from Boyle to Sligo, I saw not a great deal worthy of note. The Royal Mail Coach makes the journey, of 27 miles, in about 2½ hours. The pretty Lough Arrow, the Curlew Mountains, and Colloony, are successively passed, and at last the sea port Town of Sligo is reached; I cannot say that I admire Sligo as a town, by very clean place, I cannot say that thrift was stamped upon the place, or people. It was yet too far in the south-west of Ireland; but I carefully noted the improvement with regard to both place and people. Whatever the incubus may be, that has come down Ireland, it seems to be not so heavily here than upon most of the places that I had recently visited. There are two objects worthy of notice, to be seen at Sligo, Lough Gill and the Abbey. I did not see much for other Lakes, that I need only say for Lough Gill, that the natural beauty—the water, the wooded scenery, and the well-adorned shores, quite equalled the prettiest I had seen.

The Abbey of Sligo is a fine ruin, but it is far from pleasant to visit it. One, who has ever inhaled the peculiar odor of the disentegrating, and the close and equally unpleasant smell which arises from the exhalant of some decaying animal matter, and upon inquiry being made as to the cause, it was soon found in the declaration of the party most interested, made in the public street, that in consideration of what he had done, he had ample security for better support, than it was not principle or Reformism that suggested the change, but interest. Visit of Dr. LA'MERT, of LONDON

TO the Provinces.

DR. LA'MERT, of Bedford Row, London, Member of the Royal College of Surgeons of England; Licentiate of the Royal College of Physicians of Edinburgh, &c., Author of "SELF-PRESERVATION," the 'SCIENCE OF LIFE,' and 'SECOND LIFE'—begs to intimate to his Patients and the Public in the Provinces, in August, making a Professional Visit to the British North American Possessions, commencing with HALIFAX, N. S., and that he will afterwards visit ST. JOHN, N. B., and LOWER and UPPER CANADA.

Due notice will be given of future advertisements of Dr. La'Mert's arrival and of his place of residence in the several towns in which he may be consulted, either personally or by correspondence. In making this intimation, Dr. La'Mert wishes to point out to patients the advantages that have already result from a Professional Visit and the unusual facilities that will be afforded to those who are desirous of bringing their cases under his immediate supervision. Dr. La'Mert, moreover, cannot too strongly urge on those who have already been under his care, or who may now be in correspondence with him, the slig bility of the occasion that will present itself on this visit, of the doubts that may have existed in regard to their cases, and would particularly impress upon them the importance of personal communication as early as possible into personal communication with him during his necessarily limited stay, which under no circumstances can be prolonged beyond the dates hereafter to be announced.

In order that no obstacle may be presented to the consultations that he is about to hold in such cases, Dr. La'Mert will provide correspondence, notes, &c., connected with each individual case in the following terms, which are to be in force during the past three years. Those who contemplate availing themselves of Dr. La'Mert's extensive experience are recommended, in their own interest, to procure from one of the undermentioned Legal Agents his work on

SELF-PRESERVATION.

A Medical Treatise on Nervous Debility and Functional Weakness, more particularly in reference to the infirmities and disorders of the Generative System, with numerous Engravings and Descriptive Cases.

The object of the work is not to maintain any particular hypothesis, but to enable every one to understand for himself the structure and functions of the organs concerned in the fulfilment of Physical Obligations of the Married State; to acquaint him with the consequences arising from excesses; to point out the necessary misapprehension from unfounded fears, and to indicate, when those fears are well founded, the means of speedy relief. The work is not crowded with the technicalities of ordinary professional books, nor does it present the crudeness which characterizes the popular "popular works" on the subject.

"SELF-PRESERVATION" may be had in a sealed envelope, price One Shilling sterling, of Messrs. Clubb and Co., St. John's N. B.; E. G. Fuller, Express Agent, Halifax, N. S.; or of the author will forward it, post free, on receipt of Colonial postage stamps to the amount of Eighteenpence sterling.

LIFE OF A JAIL-BIRD.

I am not a going for to tell you my life, like a song or a story book. But to give it you short and handy. I'll put it at once into a mouthful: I English. In jail and out of jail, in jail and out of jail, in jail and out of jail. There you've got it. That's my life pretty much, down to such times as I got shipped off, arter Pip stood my friend. I've been done everything to pretty near, except hanged. I've been looked up as much as a silver tea kettle. I've been carted there, and put out of this town, and put out of that town, and sucked in the hedges to be chaffinch, sparrer, thrush, I might have thought it all was lies together, only as the Bible don't tell no lies, I suppose mine did. So far as I could find, there wasn't a soul that seed young Abel Magwitch, with as much on him as in him, but wot caught it right at last. Lord bless me! look him up, look him up. I was took up, took up, to that extent that I regularly grow'd took up. This is the way it was, that when I was a ragged little creature, as much used to be as never I little creature, as much used to be as never I little creature, as much used to be as never I
